PARCOURS ÉCONOMIE CIRCULAIRE CIRCULAR ECONOMY TRAIL

L'économie circulaire est un modèle de production et de consommation visant à augmenter l'efficacité de lisation des ressources et à diminuer l'impact sur l'environnement. Il se base sur l'extraction et exploitatio tenable des ressources, l'écoconception, l'écologie industrielle et territoriale, l'économie de la fonctionnalit a consommation responsable ainsi que sur l'allongement de la durée d'usage et le recyclage

La Commission européenne a adopté début mars 2020 un nouveau Plan d'action pour l'économie circulaire qui constitue un des principaux éléments du Pacte vert pour l'Europe (cf. « Changer nos modes de production et de consommation »). Outre l'objectif de « faire en sorte que les produits durables deviennent la norme dans L'UE» et de « donner aux consommateurs les moyens de choisir », ce nouveau plan prévoit de mettre l'accent ur les secteurs utilisant le plus de ressources et dont le potentiel de contribution à l'économie circulaire es élevé (matériel électrique & TIC, batteries et véhicules, emballages, matières plastiques, textiles, construction & bâtiment, produits alimentaires). Il entend également garantir une production moindre de déchets.

The circular economy is a production and consumption model intended to improve the effectiveness of resource utilisati and reduce impact on the environment. It is based on the sustainable extraction and use of resources, eco-design, industrial and regional ecology, functional economy, and responsible consumption, together with extending useful life and recycling. At the start of March 2020 the European Commission adopted a new Action Plan for the Circular Economy which forms one of the main planks of the European Green Deal (See "Changing our production and consumption patterns"). Beyond the objective of "making sustainable products the norm in the EU" and "giving consumers the means to choose", this new plan intends to focus on those industries using the most resources and whose potential to contribute to the circular economy is higher (electrical equipment and ITC, batteries and vehicles, packaging, plastics, textiles, construction and building, food products). It also seeks to produce less wast
